Podcast/Interview Script

Intro (Host)

“Today, we’re speaking with the team behind Paranubhuti Foundation , a Section 8 non-profit organization working across healthcare, education, women empowerment, and community development to bring real change at the grassroots level.

With a strong belief in empathy-driven action, the foundation has been transforming lives through medical support, livelihood initiatives, and social impact programs. Let’s understand the human story behind this mission.”

Question 1:

“What inspired the foundation and its mission?”

Answer (Story-driven)

“It began with a simple but powerful realization , that many people don’t suffer because solutions don’t exist, but because access doesn’t.

Coming from grassroots exposure and working closely with underserved communities, we saw how preventable health issues, lack of awareness, and limited resources were affecting lives every day.

That’s how Paranubhuti Foundation was born, ‘Paranubhuti’ means empathy. And for us, empathy is not just about understanding pain, but acting on it.

What started as small healthcare efforts has now grown into a multi-objective organization working across health, education, environment, and empowerment, always focused on reaching those who are often left behind.”

Question 2 (IMPORTANT):

"Can you tell us about the new charity store initiative?"

Answer (Livelihood + Emotion + Impact)

"One of our latest initiatives is a pilot charity store in Waliv, Vasai East, designed not just as a place to sell products, but as a platform for dignity and livelihood.

The products in this store are handmade, created by our volunteers and women from tribal communities.

For many of these women, this is more than income. It is:

- financial independence
- confidence
- and a sense of identity

Through this initiative, we are trying to shift the narrative, from charity to empowerment.

Instead of just giving support, we are creating opportunities where individuals can earn, grow, and build a sustainable future for themselves.

Every product sold represents a story, of resilience, effort, and hope."

Question 3:

"What kind of impact does the foundation aim to create in the long term?"

Answer

"Our vision is to create sustainable, long-term change, not just short-term relief.

Whether it's:

- restoring vision through eye care programs
- supporting children with medical needs
- empowering women through livelihood
- or building awareness in communities

Every initiative is designed to improve not just lives today, but futures tomorrow.

We believe real change happens when healthcare, education, and opportunity reach every corner of society."

Closing Question:

"How can people support or be a part of this mission?"

Answer (Donor + Volunteer CTA)

“There are many ways to be part of this journey.

You can:

- support through donations
- volunteer your time and skills
- or even contribute by spreading awareness

Every small action matters.

Because at the end of the day,
it’s not just about helping someone,
it’s about building a more compassionate and inclusive society together.”

Closing (Host)

“Paranubhuti Foundation reminds us that empathy is not just a feeling, it’s a responsibility.

And when compassion turns into action, real change begins.”
